Supporting immigrant entrepreneurship

With the pronounced change in the economic structure and the labour market, entrepreneurship is also becoming an increasingly important employment path for the immigrant population. Immigrants are already establishing more companies than the rest of the population, especially in the Helsinki Metropolitan Area. Through immigrant entrepreneurship, the market gains international resources, new ideas, approaches and more business, and that boosts the economy of the whole country. Entrepreneurship is also an excellent way of gaining access to Finnish society.

The City of Helsinki offers advice and help to support the entrepreneurship of people with immigrant background at NewCo Helsinki. Information sessions on how to establish a company, entrepreneurial courses, networking events and personal guidance are available for immigrants. Start-ups and other entrepreneurs aiming for growth receive similar services through NewCo Helsinki. In 2016, people who used our services established more than 1,000 new companies, and a large number of these were founded by immigrants.

On a national scale, immigrant entrepreneurs are supported by 30 Finnish Enterprise Agencies and their 84 service points that follow the Finnish Enterprise Agencies' quality system in their guidance activities. It is therefore not surprising that more than 80% of the companies established through our services were still going five years after they were set up.

Clarifying the entrepreneurial path for immigrants will benefit all of Finland. Besides the integration aspect, our operations have a strong industrial policy foundation. A service path that supports enthusiastic and competent entrepreneurship guarantees that people with immigrant background also get the best possible foundations to operate and prosper as entrepreneurs. Many successful societies have developed from having been supported by entrepreneurial immigration, and this phenomenon is also a strong part of contemporary Finland.

If you are an EU citizen residing within the EEA and wish to establish a company in Finland, but do not wish to relocate to the country, proceed as follows:

1. Choose a suitable form of enterprise, and register your company in the Finnish Patent and Registration Office's Trade Register. (www.prh.fi and www.ytj.fi)

Case 2: You are an EU citizen residing outside the EEA who wishes to establish a company in Finland

A) You are relocating to Finland

If you are an EU citizen residing outside the EEA and plan on moving to Finland with the purpose of establishing a company, proceed as follows:

Case 4: You are an EU citizen representing a company domiciled outside the European Economic Area (EEA) and you wish to establish a branch of that company in Finland

You are relocating to Finland

If you are an EU citizen representing a company domiciled outside the EEA, you wish to establish a branch of that company in Finland and are relocating to Finland, proceed as follows:

Case 1: You are a non-EU citizen currently residing in Finland who does not have a Finnish spouse or common-law partner and you wish to establish a company in Finland

If you are a student:

A) If you are a student wishing to sell only a very limited amount of services, you do not need to establish your own company as you can engage in such activities as a self-employed person and invoice all your work through an invoicing cooperative. In this case, proceed as follows:

1. If you hold a valid B-type residence permit, you do not need a different residence permit in order to begin operating as a self-employed person.
2. You simply need to register with an invoicing cooperative and invoice your work through its system.

B) If you are a student wishing to become an entrepreneur by establishing a limited liability company or cooperative, you can only do so if this activity remains secondary to your studies. For it to be considered secondary, your entrepreneurial activity must not take up more than 25 hours of your weekly time. In this case, proceed as follows:

1. If you hold a valid B-type residence permit, you do not need a new residence permit in order to begin running a limited liability company or cooperative on a part-time basis. This is because, under the Aliens Act, an entrepreneur who operates such companies is considered an employee.

This is because, under the Aliens Act, an entrepreneur who operates such companies is considered an employee.
2. If you wish to become a registered private entrepreneur or establish a general or limited partnership, you can do so without any additional permits if you hold a valid A permit for your current employment.
3. Choose a suitable form of enterprise, and register your company in the Finnish Patent and Registration Office's Trade Register. (www.prh.fi and www.ytj.fi)

1. The branch cannot be registered because it must have an appointed representative who is a permanent resident of Finland or another EEA country.

Please note!

- A branch is always established by an organisation, not a person, but it must always have an appointed representative.
- The representative must always be a natural person, which means law firms or other such entities cannot act in this role.
- Having a Finnish spouse or common-law partner does not have any bearing on the application or decision-making processes.

General details concerning residence permits

- To be able to operate as an entrepreneur in Finland, you must have a valid residence permit. If you need a new permit to be able to begin your business activities, please take into account that such changes often involve a lengthy processing period.
- If you plan on becoming an entrepreneur in Finland, it is your personal responsibility to know what activities are permitted under the terms and conditions of your residence permit.
- If you have any questions concerning residence permits, always begin by contacting the Finnish Immigration Service (Migri). (www.migri.fi)
- If you are an employer, you are always personally responsible for making sure that all your employees have all the necessary residence permits and that all such permits remain valid at all times.
- Local Register Offices determine who may reside permanently in Finland. A permanent place of residence is the deciding factor in establishing the right to set up a business. If you have any residence-related questions, please contact your Local Register Office. (www.maistraatti.fi)
- If you are the spouse of a diplomat, an ECHA employee or have been granted a residence permit on other exceptional grounds, please contact the Finnish Immigration Service (Migri) in residence-related matters concerning establishing a business. (www.migri.fi)
- Please also be aware that, when applying for a residence permit, you must have sufficient funds to establish the business in question and to cover all of your living expenses.

Entrepreneurship in Finland – mandatory responsibilities

Taxation

- All Finnish entrepreneurs are liable to pay taxes starting from the date on which their company is established, must provide the Tax Administration with all the requested information and also report any changes to previously provided information.
- No matter how little income a company earns, it is always taxed.
- An entrepreneur is liable to pay many different forms of tax:

1. VALUE-ADDED TAX (VAT)

- Finnish VAT rates are 10%, 14% and 24%; only a few industries are exempt and apply a VAT rate of 0%.
- VAT must be paid by every company, no matter what its form.
- VAT must be collected from customers and delivered to the Tax Administration.
- Please note!
  - If the company has been entered in the VAT register, the VAT it has paid for its purchases can be deducted from the VAT it is liable to pay based on its sales.

- A company is not liable to pay VAT if its annual turnover is €10,000 or less (2017). However, once this figure has been surpassed, VAT must be paid on all annual sales, not only those that are in excess of this figure.

2. INCOME TAX

LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY AND COOPERATIVE

- Income tax (earnings-based)
  - If your company is a limited liability company or a cooperative, you can draw a salary for yourself from the company. This salary is earned income and therefore subject to (earnings-based) income tax.
  - Earned income is taxed at progressive rates, which means the more you earn, the higher the rate will be.
  - Once you start drawing a salary, request a tax card from your local Tax Office and pay taxes in accordance with the tax rate marked on your tax card.

Taxation

- Advance tax (on projected annual profit)

- In addition to tax on earned income, which is paid by the employees, limited liability companies and cooperatives must also pay corporation tax based on their projected annual profit.
- The corporation tax rate is fixed at 20%, in other words it does not vary based on how much profit you make.
- This tax is paid in advance and is referred to as advance tax.
- During the company's first accounting period, the amount of advance tax to be paid is calculated based on the profit estimate provided by the entrepreneur.
- Taxes for further accounting periods are estimated based on the result of the previous accounting period.
- The Tax Authority sends the entrepreneur advance tax invoices for the estimated amounts.

- Capital income tax

- If you wish to draw profits from the company for your personal use, all such amounts are subject to a capital income tax. The rate of this tax is either 30% or 34%, depending on the amount that is drawn out.

- Final taxation/back taxes

- If your company's turnover and profit projection change over the course of the year, report this to the Tax Authority so that your company's advance tax can be readjusted.
- At the close of an accounting period, file a tax return in which you report the full turnover and profit of the accounting period in question.
- Final taxes are always calculated and charged based on this information.
- As a result, you may receive a tax refund or be liable to pay back tax.

LIMITED PARTNERSHIP AND GENERAL PARTNERSHIP

- Income tax (earnings-based)
  - If your company is a limited partnership or a general partnership, you can draw a salary for yourself from the company. This salary is earned income and therefore subject to (earnings-based) income tax.
  - Earned income is taxed at progressive rates, which means that the more you earn, the higher the rate will be.
  - Once you start drawing a salary, request a tax card from your local Tax Office and pay taxes in accordance with the tax rate marked on your tax card.
- Advance tax (on projected annual profit)
  - You can also draw money from your company in the form of personal income. Such income is drawn from the company's profit after all taxes have been paid.
  - Progressive taxation is applied to these types of companies instead of fixed rate, so the amount of taxes paid depends on the financial result.
  - This tax is paid in advance and it is referred to as advance tax.
  - During the company's first accounting period, the amount of advance tax to be paid is calculated based on the profit estimate provided by the entrepreneur.

- Taxes for further accounting periods are estimated based on the result of the previous accounting period.
- The Tax Authority sends the entrepreneur advance tax invoices for the estimated amounts.

● Final taxation/back taxes

- If your company's turnover and profit projection change over the course of the year, report this to the Tax Authority so that your company's advance tax can be readjusted.
- At the close of an accounting period, file a tax return in which you report the full turnover and profit of the accounting period in question.
- Final taxes are always calculated and charged based on this information.
- As a result, you may receive a tax refund or be liable to pay back tax.

PRIVATE ENTREPRENEUR

- Income tax (salary-based)
  - If you have established your company as a private entrepreneur, you may not draw a salary from your company.
  - You can only draw money from this kind of company in the form of personal income. Such income is drawn from the company's profit after all taxes have been paid.

Taxation

- For this reason, individuals running such companies are not subject to earnings-based income tax in the same way as other entrepreneurs, but must rather pay a so-called advance tax (see section below).
- Advance tax (on projected annual profit)
  - Private entrepreneurs are primarily taxed based on their projected annual profit.
  - Progressive taxation is applied instead of fixed-rate, so the amount of taxes paid depends on the financial result.
  - This tax is paid in advance and is referred to as advance tax.
  - During the company's first accounting period, the amount of advance tax to be paid is calculated based on the profit estimate provided by the entrepreneur.
  - Taxes for further accounting periods are estimated based on the result of the previous accounting period.
  - The Tax Authority sends the entrepreneur advance tax invoices for the estimated amounts.
- Final taxation / back taxes
  - If your company's turnover and profit projection change over the course of the year, report this to the Tax Authority so that your company's advance tax can be readjusted.
  - At the close of an accounting period, file a tax return in which you report the full turnover and profit of the accounting period in question.

- Final taxes are always calculated and charged based on this information.
- As a result, you may receive a tax refund or be liable to pay back tax.

GENERAL INFORMATION CONCERNING TAXATION

- The Tax Administration has the right to check all your records and accounts at any time and may even carry out surprise checks.
- You should therefore ensure that everything is always in order!
- If you have any questions concerning taxation, contact your nearest Tax Office. (www.vero.fi)

Entrepreneurs' employment pension insurance (YEL)

- All full-time and part-time entrepreneurs who earn more than €7,645.25 per year (2017) must take out a mandatory entrepreneurs' pension insurance (known as YEL insurance).
- This insurance is paid in the form of contributions. It is up to the entrepreneur to decide how much he or she wishes to pay, but the minimum amount on which the contributions are based must be €7,645.25. The contributions are calculated as a percentage of this base amount. The percentages are 24.1% (entrepreneurs aged 18–52) and 25.6% (ages 53–68).
- In practice, the base sum should be equivalent to the annual salary paid to other professionals doing the same type of work.
- New entrepreneurs who take out YEL insurance for the first time receive a 22% discount during the first four years.
- If your estimate of the year's full income amount changes, you can modify your YEL income amount at any time during the insurance period.
- It is worth noting that how much or how little you pay has a direct effect on your social security benefits (such as illness, maternity and paternity benefits) and your future pension. For this reason, the YEL income amount should be chosen only after careful consideration.
- For an entrepreneur to qualify for unemployment insurance, his or her YEL income amount must be at least €12,564 per year (2017).
- Please note! You must take out YEL insurance within 6 months of the date on which your entrepreneurial activity began (contributions must be paid from this date onwards).

Finnish authorities – licences, permits and monitoring

- Permits are required, for example, for restaurants, cleaning businesses, hair salons and barbershops, food stores and for businesses operating in the social services and health care sectors.

Forms of enterprises in Finland

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT FORMS OF ENTERPRISES (source: yrityssuomi.fi)

When you are starting your own business, it is vitally important that you choose the right form of enterprise. Among the things to take into account when choosing a form of enterprise are the nature of the future operations of your business, the need for capital, the number of people participating in the establishment and operations of the business, taxation issues and issues related to responsibilities and liabilities.

You can either become a private entrepreneur or establish a general partnership, a limited partnership, a limited liability company or a cooperative.

Number of people setting up the company

How many founders or owners will the company have? A limited liability company can be established by one person or many or another company. A Private Entrepreneur, meanwhile, is always just one person, but he or she must permanently reside within the EEA. A private entrepreneur does not actually form a company as such, but rather works as a private individual. A general partnership requires a minimum of two founding partners. A cooperative can be established by just one person.

Need for capital

- A limited liability company requires initial capital of €2,500 and a public limited liability company €80,000. These sums must be deposited in the company's bank account before it can be entered in the Trade Register.
- A general partnership can be established without a monetary investment. The only thing that is required is the partners' work input.
- In a limited partnership, the silent partner must make a monetary investment. General partners do not need to invest money, but are required to contribute by working for the company.
- No minimum capital has been specified for cooperatives.

Decision-making

A private entrepreneur makes every single decision by him- or herself and is also liable for them with his or her own personal assets. Partners in a general partnership and a limited partnership make decisions either on their own or together. Limited liability companies and cooperatives are represented by a board of directors.

Company forms in Finland

A managing director can be appointed by partnerships, limited liability companies or cooperatives to take care of the day-to-day administrative duties.

Risks and responsibilities

The following are personally responsible for business operations and are also personally liable for its debts and other liabilities:

- Private entrepreneurs
- Partners in a general partnership
- General partners in a limited partnership

Limited liability shareholders and members of a cooperative are not personally responsible for the obligations of their company or cooperative.

A private entrepreneur acts in his or her own name and is, therefore, also personally responsible for all of his or her financial commitments.

The general partners in a general or limited partnership are personally responsible for the debts and other liabilities of their company. In a limited partnership, the responsibility of silent partners is limited to the amount of capital investment agreed in the partnership agreement.

Continuity of operations

Can the company's business operations continue if the founder or other key persons leave the company or die? The business operations of the private entrepreneur are the most vulnerable in this sense. In general partnerships and limited partnerships, the ownership and responsibilities of one partner can be transferred, if this has been agreed upon in the partnership agreement or if other partners give their consent.

Ownership changes do not have any direct bearing on the existence of a limited liability company. Membership in a cooperative cannot be sold, but it is possible to sell the entire cooperative. This, however, requires sufficient unanimity between its members.

Withdrawal of assets and sharing of profit

A private entrepreneur can withdraw and use any profit generated by his company but, on the other hand, he or she is also fully liable for any losses incurred. You cannot pay wages to yourself or your spouse or gain any tax-free fringe benefits. After taxes have been paid, an entrepreneur can withdraw all or some of the profit generated by the company.

In general partnerships and limited partnerships, the partners agree on the criteria by which profits and losses are shared. Partners can withdraw reasonable salaries and gain fringe benefits and tax-free expense allowances. In practice, partners usually withdraw profits by making private withdrawals.

Company forms in Finland

In a limited liability company, it is the company rather than any specific person that is responsible for profits and losses. Profit is distributed by paying dividends to the company's shareholders. Shareholders can also receive reasonable salaries and fringe benefits. Private withdrawals are not possible.

In cooperatives, only limited compensation is paid for the capital that members have invested in it. Profit, or surplus, can be distributed as a return of surplus, based on how much each member has used the services of the cooperative, either as interest on cooperative capital or, depending on the rules of the cooperative, in some other way. Additional salaries may be paid to members of workers' cooperatives.

Taxation

Proceeds gained by a private entrepreneur are subject to taxation as his or her personal income. In partnerships, proceeds are first divided between the partners and then subject to taxation as the personal income of each partner. A limited liability company is liable to pay taxes as an independent entity. Its income is taxed as limited liability company income. A cooperative is taxed in this same way.
